Life stories

I have a half-sister named Gracie Elliot Teefey. She was born on June 12, 2013. Having a younger sibling is a unique and joyful experience. Gracie has had a significant impact on my life, and it's been wonderful to see her grow up.

Life stories

I grew up with my mother, Mandy Teefey, and my father, Ricardo Joel Gomez. My mother was a stage actress, and her work really inspired my love for the entertainment industry. While my father's profession wasn't as well known, both of my parents were very supportive of my early career in entertainment.

Life stories

I have a vivid memory of a sunny afternoon in my grandmother's backyard when I was around four years old. I was running through the garden, feeling the grass tickle my bare feet. My grandmother was there, smiling, as she took care of her roses. The air was fragrant with the scent of flowers and freshly cut grass. In the distance, I could hear the sound of a lawnmower and the laughter of my family from the porch. It was a serene and beautiful moment that has stayed with me, brimming with warmth and love.

Life stories

I was raised in Grand Prairie, Texas, a city in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex known for its diversity and family-friendly atmosphere. It offers a mix of urban and suburban elements, providing a blend of small-town charm and access to the larger metropolitan amenities of Dallas. This environment played a significant role in shaping my early life and experiences.

I was born in Grand Prairie, Texas on July 22, 1992, to Ricardo Joel Gomez and Mandy Teefey, a former stage actress from Texas. I was named after the late Tejano singer Selena Quintanilla, who passed away in 1995. My father is of Mexican descent, and my mother, who was adopted, has Italian ancestry.
